

What makes international arbitration user-friendly?

Almaty, 20 January 2020

The Arbitration Institute of the Stockholm Chamber of Commerce (SCC), the Embassy of Sweden in Kazakhstan and Mannheimer Swartling law firm are pleased to organize a conference devoted to recent trends in international arbitration with a focus on procedural mechanisms that make arbitration user-friendly as well as the current state of Kazakh arbitration law and practice.

The program features renowned legal practitioners from both Sweden and Kazakhstan and high-profile panel discussions highlighting the role of local laws and institutions in enhancing the efficiency of international arbitration and cost-saving tools in international arbitration. This event will provide you with an opportunity to receive first-hand knowledge on recent developments in international arbitration and distinctive features of arbitration in Kazakhstan in order to be better equipped to successfully handle any disputes.
